RE: FMRSD Update

This afternoon Governor Sununu announced that he is extending remote learning through the end of the school year. While it is disappointing that we can not physically be together before the year ends, we will still remain connected and supportive of one another. Fall Mountain Strong has never been more evident than during this period of time.

Our administrative team has been anticipating the possibility of this and met today to begin planning what the remainder of the year could look like. We will be meeting next week to continue these discussions and will communicate these plans in our next letter.

Governor Sununu and Commissioner Edelblut recognize the great work our teachers are doing in moving to remote instruction and making it work for families and students. We understand the hardship this creates for our students, especially our seniors with the excitement of graduation and end of the year activities. We will continue to be looking for innovative ways to recognize and celebrate our students' accomplishments.

These are tough times. We will get through this by continuing to work together, supporting one another and by reaching out when help is needed.

"Tough times never last, but tough people do."
